Derry Healthy Cities is an inter-sectoral partnership for health that seeks to increase understanding of the social, economic and environmental factors that impact on health and to encourage interagency working and community participation in decision making processes relating to health, well being and quality of life.

The Health Promotion Department of Westcare Business Services works towards improvement of health and well-being and the reduction of health inequalities among the people of the WH&SSB. Health Promotion aims to take health into the settings in which people 'live, work, learn and play' resulting in an improved understanding of the factors which influence health and enabling people to have access to healthier choices.

Health Promotion can support employers in working towards becoming healthier workplaces, through delivering training, assisting in policy development, and provision of advice and resources on a wide range of health related issues.

"WH&SSB recognises the workplace as an ideal opportunity to provide interventions that promote employee health. We welcome this resource pack as a valuable tool for promoting the good health of employees and encourage all employers to invest in the health of their workforce."

Steven Lindsay, Chief Executive, WH&SSB

"Invest Northern Ireland is happy to support this initiative. We believe that investing in employee health makes sound business sense. It improves employees' motivation leading to increased productivity, increased competitiveness and increased profitability "

Gerard Finnegan, Regional Manager,
Invest Northern Ireland

"Business In The Community are delighted to support the development of a practical tool which aims to approach health in the workplace in a holistic, efficient and productive manner. The toolkit provides excellent baseline recommendations and ideas which can be applied by all employers irrespective of their size, business or sector".
